Reasoning map: Rocky, LAWS1150 T3 2026 mid-term (final submission PANEL/f9/ANSWER_FINAL.md)

Conventions. F1 to F40 are the problem's sentences, verbatim and in order, from question.txt (the cover lines, course title, word limit and due date, are administrative and not facts). P1 to P16 are the submission's body paragraphs in order (headings excluded); P7.3 means paragraph 7, sentence 3. Submission text is verbatim except that footnote markers are shown as [fn N] and italics asterisks are dropped. Source words are given in double quotation marks exactly as printed in the course text, with the casebook's printed page; CB1A, CB1B, CB2A, CB2B, CB3A, CB3B and CB4A are the casebook transcriptions for classes 1A to 4A; OFF means the saved official judgment text in 96 Official judgments; TRI means the Trident course reading. Every source quotation below was string-checked against those files. Strength scale: strong, moderate, weak.

This map is updated to the final text (ANSWER_FINAL.md; changes are in F9_to_F10.diff and F10_to_FINAL.diff). Each paragraph's 'Rule and authority' entry ends with a Pinpoint line taken from PINPOINT_MAP.md (course file, printed page, and the source words as printed there, with that file's bold anchor marks dropped). Gates on this text (verify.py check, rerun on the final text): 40 quotations, 0 FAIL; every CHECK line is a quotation of the problem's own words, the known Brambles 176 parser artefact, or the new Pao On words ('was to be remunerated', fn 35), which the course extract prints without page markers (pin 629 to 630 is the brief-verified pin) (the 'p67' comes from a citation inside Heydon JA's paragraph; the casebook marker is [176]). Body 1,488 words; the stated 'Word count: 1,491' is the body plus the count line's own three words. Lint: fn 29 (Trident) has no pinpoint; neither the course reading nor the official text prints page markers inside Deane J's reasons, so none can be given.

1. FACT COVERAGE TABLE

No.	Fact (verbatim)	Where used (paragraph and exact words)	How used, or why omitted
F1	Mr Grace and Mr Rocky are both project developers who pursued various projects together since 2017 to stellar success.	P3.1: 'their commercial status as 'project developers' supports it'	Supports intention on the email (Ermogenous [25], 'the status of the parties'). 'stellar success' and the history since 2017 omitted: cumulative with 'project developers' and adds nothing to any element.
F2	In January 2020, Grace and Rocky agreed to develop a project which they named the 'Hail Mary Project'.	Not quoted	Background only; the Hail Mary Project is named through F3 in P6.1.
F3	Grace and Rocky entered into a legally binding agreement that determined the scope of their development relationship and included a valid and binding clause that if the Project made a profit, Rocky, as the investor for the Project, would be repaid his investment and a portion of the profit in priority to Grace (the 'Development Agreement').	P6.1: 'beyond the Development Agreement, which pays only 'if the Project made a profit' and is not shown breached'	Closes off a claim by Rocky against Grace under the one agreement the facts declare binding: its only stated obligation is conditional on profit and no breach is shown.
F4	Over the course of the Hail Mary Project, there were a number of unavoidable delays due to COVID-19 related public health orders that affected the ability for construction to proceed.	Not quoted; P6.1 'is not shown breached'	Delays were 'unavoidable' and imposed by public health orders, so they ground no breach either way; omitted as no element turns on them.
F5	In January 2024, the Hail Mary Project was near completion, and Rocky and Grace realised that the profit from the Project would be minimal and, due to the terms of their Development Agreement, Grace was unlikely to make a profit.	Not quoted; P6.1 'is not shown breached'	Explains Grace's motive. Minimal profit means the priority clause may still operate in Rocky's favour, but no step toward a claim is stated, so it is not developed.
F6	At this time, Grace was experiencing significant financial difficulties and had been relying on expected profits from the Hail Mary Project.	Not used	Considered and excluded (section 3, item 6): it could support reading 'satisfactory conditions' as a real lender's reservation.
F7	He was quite angry at Rocky, who he blamed for the delays to the Project, and demanded Rocky's assistance.	Not used	Motive and blame; Grace's demand is not an offer and the blame for delays founds no contractual claim (F4: 'unavoidable').
F8	On 5 February 2024, Grace called Rocky and proposed that Rocky offer Grace a '$1 million dollar working capital loan for 2 years at 5% interest'.	P1.2: 'By asking Rocky on 5 February to offer a two-year loan, Grace invited an offer rather than making one'	Grace proposed that Rocky make the offer; so no offer by Grace (Gibson 298).
F9	Rocky told Grace he was not interested in offering Grace a long-term loan but proposed that they meet in person to discuss.	P1.2: 'and Rocky declined, so no contract formed'	Any proposal on the call ended there; no contract on 5 February.
F10	On 12 February 2024, Rocky and Grace met in person.	P1.3: 'his 12 February email was merely a negotiating step'; P4.3: 'unless the conditions were settled 'this morning''	The meeting is where the 'conditions' may have been settled; the unknown that could flip P3 and P4.
F11	Later that same day, Rocky sent an email to Grace confirming the details of their discussion.	P1.3: 'Rocky could argue his 12 February email was merely a negotiating step'	Rocky's 'record of discussion, not an offer' argument.

F12	The email read as follows:	n/a	Framing sentence.
F13	'Mr Grace, Confirming discussions from our meeting this morning:	P1.3: 'it opens 'Confirming discussions''; P4.3:''this morning''	Rocky's argument that the email records rather than offers; 'this morning' marks what may already have been settled.
F14	- I will lend $1 million to you by 15 February for 1 year at a rate of 5% interest subject to satisfactory conditions.	P1.1: 'failed to lend 'by 15 February''; P1.4:''I will lend' fixes the amount, date, term and rate' and 'though made 'subject to satisfactory conditions''; P3.4:''satisfactory'' and 'the 'conditions''	The key words of the whole of Part I: promissory form (offer), and the qualifier that defeats intention (P3) and certainty (P4).
F15	- Potential project over in Eastwood subject to success of Hail Mary Project.	P1.3: 'its other points promise nothing'	Supports Rocky's 'record of discussion' reading; the submission concedes it and limits the offer to the first point.
F16	- Threatened litigation from subcontractor from Bowral Project – wait and see at present.	P1.3: 'its other points promise nothing'	Same use as F15.
F17	Please confirm agreement. Rocky'	P1.4: ''Please confirm agreement' invites acceptance'; P2.2: 'it answered a request to 'confirm agreement''	Shows the email sought assent (offer) and frames 'Confirmed' as acceptance.
F18	Grace responded to the email 15 minutes later saying, 'Mr Rocky, Confirmed. Best, Grace.'	P2.2: 'Rocky may argue that 'Confirmed' only confirmed the email's accuracy'	The acceptance question; held likely acceptance of the first point, qualifier included.
F19	On 27 February 2024, Rocky asked A-Maize Pty Ltd, ('AMPL') a company owned and controlled by Rocky's cousin, Pierre, to advance $1,150,000 to Grace.	P9.2: 'on 27 February Rocky only 'asked' AMPL to advance the money'; P8.2: 'Pierre controls AMPL'; P10.1: 'Pierre is Rocky's cousin'; P13.2: 'though Rocky 'asked' for it'; P5.3: 'though Rocky 'asked' it to lend'	Request without promise (no pre-existing contract for the existing duty rule); control (agency); family tie (intention); the request limb of the Pao On exception to past consideration; at P5.3 the request does not make AMPL Rocky's agent.
F20	Pierre agreed to provide the money to Grace and the $1,150,000 was advanced by AMPL on the same day.	P13.2: 'AMPL's earlier advance is past consideration'; P14.3: 'its 27 February advance'; P14.4: 'the genesis shows only when the money moved'	Past consideration branch and AMPL's 12-month argument; at P5.3 'its $1,150,000 advance neither performed his email nor made him a party' (agency, now addressed in the final text).
F21	On 8 April 2024, Rocky, Grace, and Pierre attended a meeting at AMPL's office.	P8.2: 'spoke at its office about its loan'; P10.2: 'made at AMPL's office'; P12.4: 'having 'attended''	Capacity (Pierre for AMPL), commercial setting (intention), and Rocky's opportunity to know the clause (assent).
F22	At the meeting, AMPL and Grace entered into a written loan agreement (the 'Loan Agreement').	P5.2: 'the Loan Agreement was made between AMPL and Grace, whose promises to repay were made to AMPL'	Party status on the instrument (Coulls 487): Rocky not a promisee.
F23	The loan was recorded as $1,150,000 ('Loan') with an interest rate of 4% per annum.	P14.3 to P14.4: 'the agreement 'recorded' a loan already made' and ''recorded' applies equally to the 4% rate'	Rebuts AMPL's reading that 'recorded' dates the term from the advance.
F24	Interest was to be paid by Grace monthly, and the Loan was repayable at the expiry of 12 months.	P11.1: 'the Loan Agreement fixes the payments'; P14.1: 'when the 12 months began'	Certainty of 'ensure'; the timing issue on AMPL's call.
F25	The Loan Agreement also included a clause that Rocky personally guaranteed repayment of the Loan.	P5.3: 'took his guarantee'; P9.3: 'guaranteeing 'repayment of the Loan''; P12.1 to P12.2; P16.1: 'personally guaranteed repayment of the Loan'	Scope comparison for the existing duty rule; whether the clause binds Rocky; measure of liability.
F26	Pierre expressed during the meeting that he expected Rocky to ensure that Grace made all payments under the Loan Agreement promptly.	P7.1: 'Pierre's statement that he 'expected''; P9.3:''all payments' 'promptly''; P11.2: 'Pierre's expectation that he 'ensure' payment'	Not an offer; the content of Rocky's undertaking; result, not effort.
F27	Rocky said, 'I will do that if you also promise to pay $10,000 to me directly once Grace repays the Loan.'	P7.2: ''I will do that if you also promise''; P8.2: 'Rocky's 'you''; P11.2 and P12.3:''I will do that''; P15.1:''once Grace repays the Loan''	The offer, its addressee, the content of the promise, and the condition on the $10,000. The final text no longer builds AMPL's existing duty argument on 'also'.
F28	Pierre agreed and the clause was included in the Loan Agreement before it was signed by Grace and AMPL.	P7.2: 'Pierre accepted when he 'agreed''; P7.3: 'nothing bound until the Loan Agreement was signed'; P9.2: ''Pierre agreed and the clause was included''; P13.2: 'it signed the Loan Agreement only after the clause was included'	Acceptance; oral formation; order of events (clause after bargain); AMPL's signing as consideration for the guarantee.
F29	Between 8 April 2024 and 8 February 2025, Grace made appropriate monthly repayments of the interest on the Loan to AMPL.	Not quoted; P16.2: 'Grace's failure to pay any amount when due'	The silence about the 8 March 2025 instalment is considered and excluded (section 3, item 5).
F30	Throughout this period Rocky would check in consistently with Grace via email.	Not used in the final text (the f9 words ', as his check-ins did' at the end of P11.2 were cut)	Shows effort was given; it would matter only if Rocky promised effort rather than result, and P11.2 holds he promised the result, so the fact adds nothing to the advice (see section 3).

F31	On 13 February 2025, Rocky sent an email to Grace asking, ‘when and how [Grace] intend[ed] to repay the principal of the Loan – the $1.15m?’.	Not used	Post-contractual conduct cannot construe the term (P14.2, Brambles 164), so Rocky’s own question does not fix when the principal fell due.
F32	Grace did not respond to Rocky’s email by 27 February 2025 and did not respond to Rocky’s subsequent emails of 28 February 2025 and 2 March 2025.	Not used	Grace’s silence has no contractual effect: no offer was outstanding to which silence could answer, and it is not repudiation within weeks 1 to 4.
F33	On 5 March 2025, Rocky instructed his solicitor to send a letter of demand to Grace requiring repayment of the principal amount under the Loan Agreement with AMPL.	P5.1: ‘Rocky’s 5 March demand for repayment under ‘the Loan Agreement with AMPL’’	Rocky’s only demand against Grace; tested and failed on privity.
F34	In response to the letter of demand, on 7 March 2025, Grace called Rocky and said, ‘I never signed anything with you, so you can’t enforce anything. Leave me alone!’	P5.4: ‘Grace’s ’I never signed anything with you’ is therefore right, but signature is not the test’	Corrects Grace’s reasoning (signature is not the test: Coulls 487).
F35	On that same date, AMPL contacted Grace directly, however, Grace refused to pay, saying, ‘I have until 8 April 2025 to repay and you won’t see a cent before then’.	Not quoted; P14.5 adopts Grace’s 8 April reading (‘arguably ran from 8 April 2024’)	Grace’s view of the term; not quoted because the point is argued from the agreement, not from Grace’s assertion.
F36	AMPL argued that the Loan was advanced on 27 February, and thus the 12 months had begun then.	P14.3: ‘AMPL would argue that the term ran from its 27 February advance’	AMPL’s case on the start of the 12 months.
F37	Grace disagreed, saying, ‘if you don’t leave off, I might not pay at all!’	P16.3: ‘so never if Grace, who said he ’might not pay at all’, never repays’	Shows the practical risk that the $10,000 condition never occurs.
F38	Unfortunately, AMPL required the $1,150,000 as soon as possible and so on 9 March 2025, when Grace had not yet repaid the Loan, AMPL called for payment of the Loan under the personal guarantee provided by Rocky.	P12.2: ‘AMPL’s call ’under the personal guarantee provided by Rocky’ assumes, but does not prove, his assent’; P14.5: ‘the 9 March 2025 call premature’; P15.1: ‘when Grace ’had not yet repaid’’	Assumes Rocky’s assent without proving it; timing of the call; condition unmet on 9 March.
F39	Assuming that all of the above takes place in New South Wales, advise Rocky on the success of any contractual claims he could make.	Whole answer; headings ‘I. ROCKY v GRACE’ and ‘II. ROCKY v AMPL (ALTERNATIVELY PIERRE)’	Structure follows the call of the question: Rocky’s claims and the claims he must answer.
F40	In your answer, only consider the course materials from weeks 1 to 4 of Principles of Private Law.	All footnotes	Every authority is a week 1 to 4 casebook or course-reading case except Port Jackson 269 (fn 16 and fn 22), which the course names at CB4A p 328 and p 336 but whose text is official-only (see P5 and P8).

2. PARAGRAPH MAP

P1. Was the 12 February email an offer?

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F14: - I will lend $1 million to you by 15 February for 1 year at a rate of 5% interest subject to satisfactory conditions.	The primary issue between Rocky and Grace is whether their February dealings formed a binding loan, since, if they did, Grace could claim that Rocky failed to lend ‘by 15 February’.
F8: On 5 February 2024, Grace called Rocky and proposed that Rocky offer Grace a ‘$1 million dollar working capital loan for 2 years at 5% interest’. F9: Rocky told Grace he was not interested in offering Grace a long-term loan but proposed that they meet in person to discuss.	By asking Rocky on 5 February to offer a two-year loan, Grace invited an offer rather than making one,[fn 1] and Rocky declined, so no contract formed.
F11: Later that same day, Rocky sent an email to Grace confirming the details of their discussion. F13: ’Mr Grace, Confirming discussions from our meeting this morning: F15: - Potential project over in Eastwood subject to success of Hail Mary Project. F16: - Threatened litigation from subcontractor from Bowral Project – wait and see at present.	Rocky could argue his 12 February email was merely a negotiating step, as it opens ‘Confirming discussions’ and its other points promise nothing.
F14: - I will lend $1 million to you by 15 February for 1 year at a rate of 5% interest subject to satisfactory conditions. F17: Please confirm agreement. Rocky’	However, ‘I will lend’ fixes the amount, date, term and rate, and ‘Please confirm agreement’ invites acceptance; unlike ‘may be prepared to sell’ in Gibson, these words are promissory,[fn 2] so the first point is likely an offer, though made ‘subject to satisfactory conditions’.

b. Issue. Whether anything Grace or Rocky said or wrote in February was an offer; it matters because a binding loan would let Grace sue Rocky for failing to lend by 15 February.

c. Arguments. Rocky ('could argue'): the email was 'merely a negotiating step', a minute of talks ('Confirming discussions'); two of its three points promise nothing (Eastwood 'subject to success', Bowral 'wait and see'), so the first is a record too. Grace: the first point is in promissory form ('I will lend'), complete on amount, date, term and rate, and asks for assent ('Please confirm agreement').

d. Rule and authority. fn 1 and fn 2: Gibson v Manchester City Council [1979] 1 WLR 294, 298, Lord Diplock (unanimous House of Lords). CB1A p 42: "The words "may be prepared to sell" are fatal to this; so is the invitation, not, be it noted, to accept the offer, but "to make formal application to buy" upon the enclosed application form."

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 1: W1 C1A Offer/Casebook (casebook/reading p 42, pdf p 4); source words: "…quite impossible to construe this letter as a contractual offer capable of being converted into a legally enforceable open contract for the sale of land by Mr Gibson's written acceptance of it. The words "may be prepared to sell" are fatal to this; so is the invitation, not, be it noted, to accept the offer, but "to make formal application to buy" upon the enclosed application form. It is, to quote Geoffrey Lane LJ, a letter setting out the financial terms on which it may …" / fn 2: W1 C1A Offer/Casebook (casebook/reading p 42, pdf p 4); source words: "…quite impossible to construe this letter as a contractual offer capable of being converted into a legally enforceable open contract for the sale of land by Mr Gibson's written acceptance of it. The words "may be prepared to sell" are fatal to this; so is the invitation, not, be it noted, to accept the offer, but "to make formal application to buy" upon the enclosed application form. It is, to quote Geoffrey Lane LJ, a letter setting out the financial terms on which it may …"

e. Why this source. Gibson is the course's leading case on the line between promissory words and an invitation, and its contrast phrase ('may be prepared to sell') lets the answer show the difference in one clause. Alternatives rejected: Carlill (CB1A p 43; a unilateral offer to the world, wrong shape) and the Boots invitation-to-treat line (display of goods, not correspondence).

f. Appropriateness. Used for what it decided: tentative words are not an offer; the answer applies the converse (promissory words can be). Lord Diplock's speech is the leading speech. Fn 1 is also used for Grace's 5 February proposal; Gibson does not itself use the term 'invitation' for a request that the other side make an offer, so that use is by analogy.

g. Calculus. 'I will lend' plus fixed terms plus a request for agreement outweighs the minute-style opening; the other points are severable because each has its own qualifier. Flip: evidence that the meeting left the loan open, which is the same evidence that drives P3. Strength: moderate. Hedge 'likely an offer, though made 'subject to satisfactory conditions'' is right, and carrying the qualifier forward is what sets up P3. Drafting note: FIXED in the final text. The f9 wording 'since Grace could otherwise claim' had the wrong connective; P1.1 now reads 'since, if they did, Grace could claim', and P1.2 now states the 5 February reasoning before its conclusion ('so no contract formed').

P2. Acceptance and consideration on the email

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F18: Grace responded to the email 15 minutes later saying, 'Mr Rocky, Confirmed. Best, Grace.'	Acceptance requires 'an external manifestation of assent to an offer'.[fn 3]
F17: Please confirm agreement. Rocky' F18: Grace responded to the email 15 minutes later saying, 'Mr Rocky, Confirmed. Best, Grace.'	Rocky could argue that 'Confirmed' only confirmed the email's accuracy, but it answered a request to 'confirm agreement' and added no new terms, so it likely accepted the first point, qualifier included.
F14: - I will lend $1 million to you by 15 February for 1 year at a rate of 5% interest subject to satisfactory conditions. F18: Grace responded to the email 15 minutes later saying, 'Mr Rocky, Confirmed. Best, Grace.'	Consideration would also exist, Rocky's promise to lend being exchanged for Grace's implied promise to repay with interest.[fn 4]

b. Issue. Whether 'Confirmed' accepted the first point, and whether there was consideration.

c. Arguments. Rocky: 'Confirmed' verifies the minute's accuracy, it does not assent. Grace: it answers 'Please confirm agreement' in its own terms, within 15 minutes, adding nothing, so it is assent to the offer as made.

d. Rule and authority. fn 3: Empirnall Holdings v Machon Paull Partners (1988) 14 NSWLR 523, 534, McHugh JA (Samuels JA agreeing; majority). CB1B p 71: "The objective theory of contract requires an external manifestation of assent to an offer." fn 4: Brambles Holdings v Bathurst City Council (2001) 53 NSWLR 153, 177, Heydon JA, quoting Integrated Computer Services 11,117 to 11,118 (McHugh JA). CB1B p 78: "In classical theory, the typical contract is a bilateral one and consists of an exchange of promises by means of an offer and its acceptance together with an intention to create a binding legal relationship".

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 3: W1 C1B Acceptance/Casebook (casebook/reading p 71, pdf p 6); source words: "…laimed was owing under an oral contract.] McHUGH JA: [534] Under the common law theory of contract, the silent acceptance of an offer is generally insufficient to create any contract … The objective theory of contract requires an external manifestation of assent to an offer. Convenience, and especially commercial convenience, has given rise to the rule that the acceptance of the offer should be communicated to the offeror. After a reasonable period has elapsed, silence is seen as a rejec…" / fn 4: W1 C1B Acceptance/Casebook (casebook/reading p 78, pdf p 11); source words: "…nto the slots of "offer", "acceptance", "consideration" and "intention to create a legal relationship" which are the benchmarks of the contract of classical theory. In classical theory, the typical contract is a bilateral one and consists of an exchange of promises by means of an offer and its acceptance together with an intention to create a binding legal relationship … Moreover, in an ongoing relationship, it is not always easy to point to the precise moment when the legal criteria of a c…"

e. Why this source. Empirnall states the objective test of acceptance in one line and is reused in P7 and P12, so one authority carries three acceptance points. Brambles at 177 (quoting McHugh JA in Integrated Computer Services) states that the typical contract is an exchange of promises, exactly the promise-for-promise shape here; it replaces Australian Woollen Mills, whose quid pro quo passage is framed for an act done for a promise. Alternatives rejected: the mirror-image and counter-offer cases in 1B (no new term was added, so they would only confirm); Felthouse (silence; not in issue here).

f. Appropriateness. Empirnall 534 is a general statement of principle, correctly used. Fn 4 cites Heydon JA, whose offer-and-acceptance discussion in Brambles was not the majority's route, but the words are McHugh JA's general description of a bilateral contract, uncontroversial and used for exactly what they say. This replaces the earlier use of Australian Woollen Mills, whose passage concerns unilateral offers; the fit is now better.

g. Calculus. The reply mirrors the request ('confirm agreement' and 'Confirmed'), so the objective reading is assent; Rocky's 'accuracy' reading is possible but would make his request for 'agreement' pointless. Flip: a later course of dealing showing both treated the email as a minute. Strength: moderate. 'likely accepted the first point, qualifier included' is right; 'qualifier included' is essential, as acceptance cannot remove the qualifier. Consideration ('would also exist') is strong if a promise was made, and correctly conditional.

P3. Intention: did 'subject to satisfactory conditions' postpone obligations?

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F14: - I will lend $1 million to you by 15 February for 1 year at a rate of 5% interest subject to satisfactory conditions. F1: Mr Grace and Mr Rocky are both project developers who pursued various projects together since 2017 to stellar success.	The qualifier, however, raises whether the parties intended immediate obligations, which is assessed objectively, with the onus on Grace as the party alleging the contract, although their commercial status as 'project developers' supports it.[fn 5]
F13: 'Mr Grace, Confirming discussions from our meeting this morning: F14: - I will lend $1 million to you by 15 February for 1 year at a rate of 5% interest subject to satisfactory conditions.	The question is whether the terms were settled and merely to be 'put into form', or were 'subject to a new agreement'.[fn 6]
F14: - I will lend $1 million to you by 15 February for 1 year at a rate of 5% interest subject to satisfactory conditions.	Grace may rely on Godecke, where an agreement letting the vendor's solicitors add terms bound because those terms had to be reasonable 'in an objective sense'.[fn 7]
F14: - I will lend $1 million to you by 15 February for 1 year at a rate of 5% interest subject to satisfactory conditions.	Rocky's qualifier contains no such standard: 'satisfactory' leaves the judgment to the party the condition protects,[fn 8] here Rocky, and the 'conditions', naming no external event, are most naturally further terms of the loan itself.
F14: - I will lend $1 million to you by 15 February for 1 year at a rate of 5% interest subject to satisfactory conditions.	Gibbs J doubted that an agreement leaving 'further terms to be settled by one of the parties' binds,[fn 9] so on balance the loan was likely left to a new agreement, negating intention to be bound immediately.

b. Issue. Whether the parties intended to be bound now or left the loan to a further agreement.

c. Arguments. Grace (strongest): the parties are commercial developers; Godecke shows a bargain can bind even though one side may add terms, so 'satisfactory conditions' is a mechanism inside a concluded contract. Rocky: 'satisfactory' is his own judgment, the 'conditions' are unstated terms of his own loan, so the case is Masters' third class, a new agreement still to be made.

d. Rule and authority. fn 5: Ermogenous (2002) 209 CLR 95, [25] to [26] (Gaudron, McHugh, Hayne and Callinan JJ; majority). CB3A p 137 at [25]: "the status of the parties to it, their relationship to one another, and other surrounding circumstances"; at [26]: "it was for the appellant to demonstrate that there was such a contract." fn 6: Masters v Cameron (1954) 91 CLR 353, 363 (Dixon CJ, McTiernan and Kitto JJ), quoting Winn v Bull 32 (Jessel MR). CB3A p 156: "When it is not expressly stated to be subject to a formal contract it becomes a question of construc- tion, whether the parties intended that the terms agreed on should be put into form, or whether they should be subject to a new agreement the terms of which are not expressed in detail" (line-break hyphen as printed). fn 7: Godecke v Kirwan (1973) 129 CLR 629, 642 to 643, Walsh J (Mason J agreeing; majority). CB3B p 189: "It means that what is required must be reasonable in an objective sense, and in case of [643] dispute this is a matter which the court can decide." fn 8: Meehan v Jones (1982) 149 CLR 571, 580 to 581, Gibbs CJ (majority). CB3B p 183: "its natural effect is to leave it to the purchaser to determine whether or not the available finance is suitable to his needs" and "Such a condition is generally entirely for the protection of the purchaser". fn 9: Godecke 646 to 647, Gibbs J (concurring). CB3B p 190: "it does not necessarily follow from what I have said that an agreement which left further terms to be settled by one of the parties, rather than by his solicitors, would be treated as a concluded contract."

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 5: W3 C3A Intention/Casebook (casebook/reading p 137, pdf p 3); source words: "…nd actions happened (Codelfa Construction Pty Ltd v State Rail Authority of NSW (1982) 149 CLR 337 at 348-353 per Mason J; Royal Botanic Gardens and Domain Trust v South Sydney City Council [2002] HCA 5; (2002) 240 CLR 45). It is not a search for the uncommunicated subjective motives or intentions of the parties. [26] In this context of intention to create legal relations there is frequent reference to "presump- tions". It is said that it may be presumed that there are some "family arrangements" which…" / fn 6: W3 C3A Intention/Casebook (casebook/reading p 156, pdf p 22); source words: "… Part II: Formation Masters v Cameron cont. Parties often do enter into a negotiation meaning that, when they have (or think they have) come to one mind, the result shall be put into formal shape, and then (if on seeing the result in that shape they find they are agreed) signed and made binding; but that each party is to reserve to himself the right to retire from the contract, if, on looking at the formal contrac…" / fn 7: W3 C3B Certainty/Casebook (casebook/reading p 189, pdf p 25); source words: "…s of requiring the inclusion of the covenants and conditions. In my opinion, this does not mean that anything may be required which in the opinion of the solicitors is reasonable. It means that what is required must be reasonable in an objective sense, and in case of [643] dispute this is a matter which the court can decide. Clause 6 does not mean that the purchaser is making an agreement to agree later upon additional provisions to govern the bargain. It means that he is agre…" / fn 8: W3 C3B Certainty/Casebook (casebook/reading p 183, pdf p 19); source words: "…nance is suitable to his needs. A clause such as Special Condition 1(b), which speaks of "satisfactory terms and conditions", in its natural meaning requires that the purchaser be satisfied … [581] Such a condition is generally entirely for the protection of the purchaser, and it is the satisfaction of the purchaser, not that of some hypothetical reasonable man, that will satisfy the condition. No doubt it may be implied that the purchaser will act honestly in deciding whether or not he is satisfi…" / fn 9: W3 C3B Certainty/Casebook (casebook/reading p 190, pdf p 26); source words: "…to the agreement, or render it in any way incomplete and would present no obstacle to its specific performance. I should perhaps make it clear that it does not necessarily follow from what I have said that an agreement which left further terms to be settled by one of the parties, rather than by his solicitors, would be treated as a concluded contract. In May and Butcher Ltd v The King [1934] 2 KB 17, 21, Viscount Dunedin suggested that a sale of land which left the price to be settled by the buyer himsel…"

e. Why this source. Ermogenous is the course's statement of the objective test and the onus. Masters supplies the exact construction question for an agreement not expressly 'subject to contract' (Winn v Bull passage), which fits an email that says 'subject to satisfactory conditions' rather than 'subject to contract'. Godecke is Grace's best authority and is met head on. Meehan supplies who judges 'satisfactory'. Alternatives rejected: Placer Development (cited by Gibbs J at CB3B p 190; a discretion over payment, closer to P4's illusory-promise point and already covered there by the Thorby words); the 'subject to finance' line beyond Meehan (no extra value).

f. Appropriateness. Ermogenous, Masters, Walsh J in Godecke and Gibbs CJ in Meehan are majority reasoning, used for what they decided. Meehan concerned a condition protecting a purchaser of land; transferring 'satisfactory' to a lender's conditions is an analogy, fairly drawn. Gibbs J's Godecke passage is obiter in a concurring judgment; the answer signals this only by 'doubted'. Two limits not disclosed: (1) Gibbs J at 647 immediately adds "Perhaps it may be different where agreement has been reached on all essential terms but the determination of subsidiary matters has been left to one of the parties" (CB3B p 190), the final text drops the earlier 'at all' ('binds'), which removes the overstatement, though the reservation itself is still not mentioned (section 3, item 7); (2) Walsh J, the majority, at 642 (OFF only; not in the casebook) said "there is no reason in principle for holding that there cannot be any binding contract if some matter is left to be determined by one of the contracting parties". The answer survives both because what was left to Rocky is the content of his own loan, an essential matter, not a subsidiary one.

g. Calculus. The deciding contrast is between an objective standard (Godecke: terms 'reasonable in an objective sense', so a court can police them) and a bare 'satisfactory' to the promisor with no standard (Meehan: his own satisfaction). With no standard and no stated content, the terms were not 'agreed on' to be 'put into form'. Gibbs J at 647 adds a further point the answer could have used: discretion left to the promisor (here Rocky, the lender) is the case for the Thorby principle. Flip: evidence that 'conditions' meant routine security or documentation already settled at the meeting (Gibbs J's subsidiary-matters reservation, Walsh J's majority view). Strength: moderate. 'on balance the loan was likely left to a new agreement, negating intention to be bound immediately' is right.

P4. Certainty: was Rocky's promise illusory?

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F14: - I will lend $1 million to you by 15 February for 1 year at a rate of 5% interest subject to satisfactory conditions.	On certainty, Grace may argue that, as in Meehan, Rocky must decide honestly,[fn 10] which takes a promise outside the principle that a promisor with 'a discretion or option as to whether he will carry out' the promise makes no contract.[fn 11]
F14: - I will lend $1 million to you by 15 February for 1 year at a rate of 5% interest subject to satisfactory conditions.	However, honesty in Meehan governed a judgment on an external condition, the availability of finance, whereas Rocky's discretion arguably concerns the content of his loan rather than relating 'only to the fulfilment of a condition',[fn 12] and honesty cannot supply terms never agreed.
F10: On 12 February 2024, Rocky and Grace met in person. F13: 'Mr Grace, Confirming discussions from our meeting this morning:	Rocky's promise is therefore arguably illusory, and unless the conditions were settled 'this morning', the email likely bound neither party.

b. Issue. Whether a promise to lend 'subject to satisfactory conditions' leaves Rocky a discretion whether to perform, making it illusory.

c. Arguments. Grace: Meehan implies honesty into a 'satisfactory' clause, and Mason J held that limit takes the case out of the illusory-promise principle. Rocky: Meehan's discretion went to an external condition (finance); his goes to the content of the very obligation, which the honesty limit cannot fill.

d. Rule and authority. fn 10: Meehan 581, Gibbs CJ. CB3B p 183: "No doubt it may be implied that the purchaser will act honestly in deciding whether or not he is satisfied." fn 11: Meehan 589 to 590, Mason J (Wilson J agreeing; majority), quoting Thorby v Goldberg 605. CB3B p 185: "The limitation that the purchaser must act honestly, or honestly and reasonably, takes the case out of the principle that: where words which by themselves constitute a promise are accompanied by words which show that the promisor is [590] to have a discretion or option as to whether he will carry out that which purports to be the promise, the result is that there is no contract on which an action can be brought." fn 12: Meehan 581, Gibbs CJ. CB3B p 183: "that principle does not apply where the discretion or option of the contracting party relates, not to the performance of the contractual obligations themselves, but only to the fulfilment of a condition upon which the contract depends."

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 10: W3 C3B Certainty/Casebook (casebook/reading p 183, pdf p 19); source words: "… is generally entirely for the protection of the purchaser, and it is the satisfaction of the purchaser, not that of some hypothetical reasonable man, that will satisfy the condition. No doubt it may be implied that the purchaser will act honestly in deciding whether or not he is satisfied. However, it does not seem to me necessary, in order to give business efficacy to a contract, that a condition should be implied that the purchaser will make reasonable efforts to obtain finance. Th…" / fn 11: W3 C3B Certainty/Casebook (casebook/reading p 185, pdf p 21); source words: "…The limitation that the purchaser must act honestly, or honestly and reasonably, takes the case out of the principle that: where words which by themselves constitute a promise are accompanied by words which show that the promisor is [590] to have a discretion or option as to whether he will carry out that which purports to be the promise, the result is that there is no contract on which an action can be brought. [6.260] 185 …" / fn 12: W3 C3B Certainty/Casebook (casebook/reading p 183, pdf p 19); source words: "…ntract on which an action can be brought at all. . In my opinion that principle does not apply where the discretion or option of the contracting party relates, not to the performance of the contractual obligations themselves, but only to the fulfilment of a condition upon which the contract depends. That this is so is illustrated by the case of an option to purchase which is, in many cases at least, a contract to sell the land upon condition that the grantee gives the notice and does the othe…"

e. Why this source. Meehan is the course's case on 'satisfactory' clauses and contains both sides: Grace's (honesty, Mason J) and Rocky's distinction (Gibbs CJ's condition versus obligation). Alternatives rejected: Placer Development (cited by Gibbs J at CB3B p 190; discretion as to amount payable, a strong analogy for Rocky but it would add a case for a point Meehan already makes); Upper Hunter (saves uncertain words, not discretionary ones).

f. Appropriateness. Both judges were in the majority; the Thorby words are correctly attributed through ', quoting'. Gibbs CJ's distinction is applied as he drew it. Limit: Meehan's ratio is that the finance clause was valid; the answer uses the distinction drawn within that reasoning to reach the opposite result on different facts, which is legitimate distinguishing, openly done.

g. Calculus. Honesty can police a yes-or-no judgment on an outside event; it cannot write the missing terms of a loan. So the discretion is over performance itself and the Thorby principle bites. Flip: proof that the conditions were settled at the meeting ('this morning'), in which case 'satisfactory' would refer to known conditions and honesty could operate. Strength: moderate. 'arguably illusory' and 'likely bound neither party' are correctly pitched, and the conditional ('unless the conditions were settled') names the flip.

P5. Privity: Rocky's demand under the Loan Agreement

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F33: On 5 March 2025, Rocky instructed his solicitor to send a letter of demand to Grace requiring repayment of the principal amount under the Loan Agreement with AMPL.	Rocky's 5 March demand for repayment under 'the Loan Agreement with AMPL' faces privity, under which 'only those who are parties to a contract can sue upon it'.[fn 13]
F22: At the meeting, AMPL and Grace entered into a written loan agreement (the 'Loan Agreement'). F23: The loan was recorded as $1,150,000 ('Loan') with an interest rate of 4% per annum. F24: Interest was to be paid by Grace monthly, and the Loan was repayable at the expiry of 12 months.	Party status is determined from 'the written instrument itself',[fn 14] and the Loan Agreement was made between AMPL and Grace, whose promises to repay were made to AMPL; none was made to Rocky, even as a joint promisee.[fn 15]
F19: On 27 February 2024, Rocky asked A-Maize Pty Ltd, ('AMPL') a company owned and controlled by Rocky's cousin, Pierre, to advance $1,150,000 to Grace. F20: Pierre agreed to provide the money to Grace and the $1,150,000 was advanced by AMPL on the same day. F25: The Loan Agreement also included a clause that Rocky personally guaranteed repayment of the Loan.	Nor was AMPL his agent: though Rocky 'asked' it to lend, it lent in its own name and took his guarantee, so it contracted for itself,[fn 16] and its $1,150,000 advance neither performed his email nor made him a party.
F34: In response to the letter of demand, on 7 March 2025, Grace called Rocky and said, 'I never signed anything with you, so you can't enforce anything. Leave me alone!'	Grace's 'I never signed anything with you' is therefore right, but signature is not the test, as Mrs Coulls signed yet was not a party.[fn 17]

b. Issue. Whether Rocky can enforce Grace's repayment promise in a contract between AMPL and Grace, including whether AMPL contracted as Rocky's agent (added in the final text at P5.3).

c. Arguments. Rocky: the Loan Agreement contains his guarantee and he arranged the loan, so he is within it. Rocky could also say AMPL lent as his agent, since he 'asked' it to lend, so its advance performed his email and he is the real lender. Grace: 'I never signed anything with you'. Best answer: Rocky provided no consideration for Grace's promise and is not its promisee, so the result is Grace's but the reason is privity, not signature; and AMPL lent in its own name and took Rocky's guarantee, which is inconsistent with contracting as his agent.

d. Rule and authority. fn 13: Coulls v Bagot's Executor & Trustee Co (1967) 119 CLR 460, 494, Windeyer J (dissenting). CB4A p 333: "By the common law of England only those who are parties to a contract can sue upon it." (Earlier versions stated the rule as consideration-based and pinned 494 to 495; the final text quotes the 494 words directly.) fn 16: Port Jackson Stevedoring v Salmond & Spraggon (1978) 139 CLR 231, 269 (Mason and Jacobs JJ, quoting Lord Reid in Scruttons v Midland Silicones [1962] AC 446, 474), rev'd (1980) 144 CLR 300. OFF (at p269): "the carrier, in addition to contracting for these provisions on his own behalf, is also contracting as agent for the stevedore that these provisions should apply to the stevedore, (thirdly) the carrier has authority from the stevedore to do that". fn 14 and fn 17: Coulls 487, Taylor and Owen JJ (majority). CB4A p 331: "But the mere fact that her signature appears does not make her a party; this is a question to be resolved upon a consideration of the written instrument itself." fn 15: Coulls 486, Taylor and Owen JJ. CB4A p 330: "We do not accept the contention advanced on behalf of the appellant that if one, only, of two joint promisees provides the consideration for a promisor's promise the other prom- isee cannot, in any circumstances, sue" (line-break hyphen as printed).

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 13: W4 C4A Privity/Casebook (casebook/reading p 333, pdf p 7); source words: "… Privity Chapter 11 Coulls v Bagot's Executor & Trustee cont. [494] By the common law of England only those who are parties to a contract can sue upon it. For us that statement is incontrovertible. But what exactly is meant by it? Is there a useful distinction between denying a right of action to a person because no promise was made to him, and denying a right of action to a perso…" / fn 14: W4 C4A Privity/Casebook (casebook/reading p 331, pdf p 5); source words: "…ffect of the last paragraph was to make her a party and that therefore her signature was necessary. But the mere fact that her signature appears does not make her a party; this is a question to be resolved upon a consideration of the written instrument itself. It seems to us that the terms of the last paragraph do not prescribe the persons who are to be entitled to demand and receive the royalties payable under the agreement and, therefore, do not negative the certain implication whic…" / fn 15: W4 C4A Privity/Casebook (casebook/reading p 330, pdf p 4); source words: "…he royal- ties payable after her husband's death notwithstanding that she, personally, gave no consideration for the company's promise. We do not accept the contention advanced on behalf of the appellant that if one, only, of two joint promisees provides the consideration for a promisor's promise the other prom- isee cannot, in any circumstances, sue to recover moneys payable according to the promise. Indeed it is apparent that in such circumstances at common law an action to recover must have bee…" / fn 16: 96 Official judgments/Port Jackson Stevedoring v Salmond [1978] HCA 8.txt (next page marker after passage: p 269); source words: "…success of the agency argument if (first) the bill of lading makes clear that the stevedore is intended to be protected by the provisions in it which limit liability, (secondly) the bill of lading makes it clear that the carrier, in addition to contracting for these provisions on his own behalf, is also contracting as agent for the stevedore that these provisions should apply to the stevedore, (thirdly) the carrier has authority from the stevedore to do that, or perhaps later ratification by the stevedore would suffice,…" / fn 17: W4 C4A Privity/Casebook (casebook/reading p 331, pdf p 5); source words: "…howed that the contract had been written out by the testator's wife at his request and it may have been thought that the effect of the last paragraph was to make her a party and that therefore her signature was necessary. But the mere fact that her signature appears does not make her a party; this is a question to be resolved upon a consideration of the written instrument itself. It seems to us that the terms of the last paragraph do not prescribe the persons who are to be entitled to demand…"

e. Why this source. Coulls is the course's privity case and supplies all three steps: the rule, the test for party status (the instrument), and the answer to 'I never signed' (Mrs Coulls signed and was not a party). Its joint promisee passage closes one of Rocky's routes in, and Port Jackson's agency conditions close the other (the same footnote then serves P8 by short form, fn 22). Alternatives rejected: Trident for the rule (used at P12 for the 'bound by' limb, where it fits better); Dunlop v Selfridge (not extracted in the course).

f. Appropriateness. The rule at 494 is Windeyer J's, in dissent, and is disclosed as such; the dissent was on the construction of the document, and the privity rule is common ground with the majority. Port Jackson 269 is official-only and was reversed (see P8 (f) for both limits); here it is applied by analogy to a lender acting in its own name. Taylor and Owen JJ's passages are majority. The joint promisee route at 486 is put correctly: it is available only to a promisee, and none of Grace's promises was made to Rocky.

g. Calculus. Rocky is a guarantor, not a promisee of Grace's repayment promise; nothing he gave was the price of Grace's promise. On agency, a lender that contracts in its own name and takes the requester's guarantee is acting for itself, not as his agent; the different sum ($1,150,000 against the email's $1 million) and rate (4% against 5%) point the same way. Flip: wording in the Loan Agreement making Grace's promises run to Rocky jointly with AMPL (unknown, and unlikely given F22). Strength: strong. 'is therefore right, but signature is not the test' is a firm statement and justified; the agency step is moderate to strong ('so it contracted for itself').

P6. Conclusion, Rocky v Grace

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F3: Grace and Rocky entered into a legally binding agreement that determined the scope of their development relationship and included a valid and binding clause that if the Project made a profit, Rocky, as the investor for the Project, would be repaid his investment and a portion of the profit in priority to Grace (the 'Development Agreement'). F5: In January 2024, the Hail Mary Project was near completion, and Rocky and Grace realised that the profit from the Project would be minimal and, due to the terms of their Development Agreement, Grace was unlikely to make a profit. F33: On 5 March 2025, Rocky instructed his solicitor to send a letter of demand to Grace requiring repayment of the principal amount under the Loan Agreement with AMPL. F36: AMPL argued that the Loan was advanced on 27 February, and thus the 12 months had begun then.	Thus, beyond the Development Agreement, which pays only 'if the Project made a profit' and is not shown breached, Rocky has no contractual claim against Grace, whenever the 12 months began, and Grace likely has none against him for failing to lend; nor did Grace promise to reimburse Rocky for anything he pays AMPL.

b. Issue. Net result between Rocky and Grace.

c. Arguments. Rocky: some contract with Grace must support his demand. Grace: none does; and if the email bound, Rocky failed to lend by 15 February.

d. Rule and authority. No new footnote; rests on P1 to P5 and the problem's own words ('if the Project made a profit'). The final text folds the Development Agreement into this single concluding sentence.

Pinpoint: none (no footnote in this paragraph).

e. Why this source. None needed: conclusion from the analysis above.

f. Appropriateness. The Development Agreement is correctly treated as the only contract the facts declare binding; no reimbursement promise by Grace exists in F1 to F38.

g. Calculus. No claim by Rocky against Grace: strong, because privity defeats the demand on either reading of the 12 months. Grace's claim against Rocky: moderate, as it rests on P3 and P4 ('likely has none'). Hedges right.

P7. Formation of the $10,000 contract

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)

F21: On 8 April 2024, Rocky, Grace, and Pierre attended a meeting at AMPL's office. F26: Pierre expressed during the meeting that he expected Rocky to ensure that Grace made all payments under the Loan Agreement promptly.	On whether a contract for the $10,000 formed at the 8 April meeting, Pierre's statement that he 'expected' Rocky to ensure Grace's payments promised nothing, so it was likely an invitation to treat.[fn 18]
F27: Rocky said, 'I will do that if you also promise to pay $10,000 to me directly once Grace repays the Loan.' F28: Pierre agreed and the clause was included in the Loan Agreement before it was signed by Grace and AMPL.	Rocky's reply, 'I will do that if you also promise', offered a promise for a promise,[fn 19] which Pierre accepted when he 'agreed'.[fn 20]
F28: Pierre agreed and the clause was included in the Loan Agreement before it was signed by Grace and AMPL.	AMPL may argue that nothing bound until the Loan Agreement was signed, but parties are bound 'when, and in the manner in which, they intend',[fn 21] and little suggests Rocky's undertaking was to await any signature, so a contract likely formed orally.

b. Issue. Whether an oral contract for the $10,000 formed at the 8 April meeting.

c. Arguments. Rocky: Pierre's expectation invited a response; Rocky offered a promise for a promise ('I will do that if you also promise'); Pierre 'agreed'. AMPL: no one was bound until the written Loan Agreement was signed, and the arrangement was absorbed into it.

d. Rule and authority. fn 18: Gibson 298 (as P1). fn 19: Brambles (n 4) 177, Heydon JA (short form; the 'quoting Integrated Computer Services' tail is in fn 4). CB1B p 78: "In classical theory, the typical contract is a bilateral one and consists of an exchange of promises by means of an offer and its acceptance together with an intention to create a binding legal relationship". fn 20: Empirnall 534 (as P2). fn 21: Brambles 176, Heydon JA, quoting Eccles v Bryant 104 (Lord Greene MR). CB1B p 77: "Parties become bound by contract when, and in the manner in which, they intend and contemplate becoming bound."

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 18: W1 C1A Offer/Casebook (casebook/reading p 42, pdf p 4); source words: "…quite impossible to construe this letter as a contractual offer capable of being converted into a legally enforceable open contract for the sale of land by Mr Gibson's written acceptance of it. The words "may be prepared to sell" are fatal to this; so is the invitation, not, be it noted, to accept the offer, but "to make formal application to buy" upon the enclosed application form. It is, to quote Geoffrey Lane LJ, a letter setting out the financial terms on which it may …" / fn 19: W1 C1B Acceptance/Casebook (casebook/reading p 78, pdf p 11); source words: "…nto the slots of "offer", "acceptance", "consideration" and "intention to create a legal relationship" which are the benchmarks of the contract of classical theory. In classical theory, the typical contract is a bilateral one and consists of an exchange of promises by means of an offer and its acceptance together with an intention to create a binding legal relationship … Moreover, in an ongoing relationship, it is not always easy to point to the precise moment when the legal criteria of a c…" / fn 20: W1 C1B Acceptance/Casebook (casebook/reading p 71, pdf p 6); source words: "…laimed was owing under an oral contract.] McHUGH JA: [534] Under the common law theory of contract, the silent acceptance of an offer is generally insufficient to create any contract … The objective theory of contract requires an external manifestation of assent to an offer. Convenience, and especially commercial convenience, has given rise to the rule that the acceptance of the offer should be communicated to the offeror. After a reasonable period has elapsed, silence is seen as a rejec…" / fn 21: W1 C1B Acceptance/Casebook (casebook/reading p 77, pdf p 10); source words: "… 240 at [65]–[67]. Another example concerns the exchanges of contracts to sell land, which are hard to analyse in offer and acceptance terms; despite that Lord Greene MR observed of the practice: "Parties become bound by contract when, and in the manner in which, they intend and contemplate becoming bound. It is a question of the facts of each case …" (Eccles v Bryant [1948] 1 Ch 93 at 104). Another example concerns simultaneous manifestations of consent (Horst K Lücke "Striking A Bargai…"

e. Why this source. Gibson and Empirnall are reused at no word cost. Brambles gives the bilateral exchange of promises in a course text and, through Eccles v Bryant, the answer to AMPL's 'nothing until signing' argument. Alternatives rejected: Masters for the signing point (built for 'subject to contract' wording, absent here); the 1B postal and instantaneous communication cases (the parties were face to face).

f. Appropriateness. Heydon JA's offer-and-acceptance discussion in Brambles was not the route the majority took (Ipp AJA, Mason P agreeing, decided on a different basis), so both Brambles footnotes cite a concurring judge for general statements; the statements are general and uncontroversial, and the answer does not claim them as the court's holding. Gibson does not use the label 'invitation to treat'; its use for 'expected' is by analogy (words that promise nothing are not an offer).

g. Calculus. Pierre's words are a statement of expectation, not a promise, so Rocky's conditional undertaking is the offer and Pierre's agreement the acceptance. Nothing in F28 makes signing a condition of Rocky's undertaking (the final text says 'little suggests', a fair softening); Rocky did not sign anything. Flip: evidence that everyone treated the written document as the only bargain (for example an entire agreement clause). Strength: moderate to strong. 'likely formed orally' is right.

P8. Who promised the $10,000: AMPL or Pierre?

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F19: On 27 February 2024, Rocky asked A-Maize Pty Ltd, ('AMPL') a company owned and controlled by Rocky's cousin, Pierre, to advance $1,150,000 to Grace. F27: Rocky said, 'I will do that if you also promise to pay $10,000 to me directly once Grace repays the Loan.'	The same agency conditions guide whether Pierre, with AMPL's authority, contracted on its behalf rather than solely for himself.[fn 22]
F19: On 27 February 2024, Rocky asked A-Maize Pty Ltd, ('AMPL') a company owned and controlled by Rocky's cousin, Pierre, to advance $1,150,000 to Grace. F21: On 8 April 2024, Rocky, Grace, and Pierre attended a meeting at AMPL's office. F27: Rocky said, 'I will do that if you also promise to pay $10,000 to me directly once Grace repays the Loan.'	Rocky's 'you' points to Pierre, but Pierre controls AMPL and spoke at its office about its loan, so AMPL likely made the promise; if Pierre instead contracted for himself, Rocky's undertaking ran to Pierre, and AMPL can rely only on the guarantee clause.

b. Issue. Whether Pierre made the $10,000 promise for AMPL (as its agent) or personally.

c. Arguments. Rocky (against AMPL): Pierre owns and controls AMPL, spoke at its office about its loan, so AMPL promised. AMPL: Rocky's 'you' addressed Pierre, so Pierre promised personally and AMPL owes nothing.

d. Rule and authority. fn 22: Port Jackson (n 16) 269 (Mason and Jacobs JJ); the full citation is at fn 16, where 'rev'd (1980) 144 CLR 300' attaches to Port Jackson. P8.1 now says 'The same agency conditions guide', linking back to P5.3. Source words as at P5: OFF (at p269) "in addition to contracting for these provisions on his own behalf". OFF (at p269): "the carrier, in addition to contracting for these provisions on his own behalf, is also contracting as agent for the stevedore that these provisions should apply to the stevedore, (thirdly) the carrier has authority from the stevedore to do that".

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 22: 96 Official judgments/Port Jackson Stevedoring v Salmond [1978] HCA 8.txt (next page marker after passage: p 269); source words: "…success of the agency argument if (first) the bill of lading makes clear that the stevedore is intended to be protected by the provisions in it which limit liability, (secondly) the bill of lading makes it clear that the carrier, in addition to contracting for these provisions on his own behalf, is also contracting as agent for the stevedore that these provisions should apply to the stevedore, (thirdly) the carrier has authority from the stevedore to do that, or perhaps later ratification by the stevedore would suffice,…"

e. Why this source. It is the course's agency case (named at CB4A p 328 and p 336) and states the two elements the answer needs: contracting for the principal and authority. Alternatives rejected: the casebook editors' note at CB4A p 336 ("The privity rule does not apply if a per- son promised a benefit under a contract can show that one of the parties involved in the acts of contract formation entered into the contract as their agent") and Trident, Mason CJ and Wilson J (TRI); either was available inside the course text and would have avoided an official-only, later-reversed citation.

f. Appropriateness. Limits: (1) official-only: the course casebook pages for this class end at p 336 and do not print the Port Jackson reasons, so the words are from the official report; (2) the High Court decision was reversed by the Privy Council in New York Star (1980) 144 CLR 300, which the footnote discloses ('rev'd'); the reversal was on the application, and Lord Reid's agency test itself had been accepted by the Privy Council in The Eurymedon (OFF Port Jackson at p269: "In The Eurymedon Lord Reid's observation was accepted as a correct statement of the law"), so the proposition survives; (3) Lord Reid's test was framed for a carrier contracting for a stevedore; applying it to a director speaking for his company is an analogy.

g. Calculus. Control plus place plus subject-matter (AMPL's own loan) outweighs the single pronoun 'you'. Flip: evidence that Pierre was to pay from his own pocket. Strength: moderate. 'AMPL likely made the promise' is right, and the answer runs the Pierre branch so nothing depends on the call.

P9. Consideration from Rocky: the existing legal duty rule

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F25: The Loan Agreement also included a clause that Rocky personally guaranteed repayment of the Loan. F27: Rocky said, 'I will do that if you also promise to pay $10,000 to me directly once Grace repays the Loan.'	On consideration, AMPL may invoke the existing legal duty rule, arguing that Rocky had already guaranteed the Loan, so his promise to ensure Grace's payments gave it nothing new.[fn 23]
F19: On 27 February 2024, Rocky asked A-Maize Pty Ltd, ('AMPL') a company owned and controlled by Rocky's cousin, Pierre, to advance $1,150,000 to Grace. F28: Pierre agreed and the clause was included in the Loan Agreement before it was signed by Grace and AMPL.	However, the rule presupposes a duty, as under 'a pre-existing contract' with the promisee,[fn 24] and none existed: on 27 February Rocky only 'asked' AMPL to advance the money, and 'Pierre agreed and the clause was included' suggests the clause followed the bargain.
F25: The Loan Agreement also included a clause that Rocky personally guaranteed repayment of the Loan. F26: Pierre expressed during the meeting that he expected Rocky to ensure that Grace made all payments under the Loan Agreement promptly.	Even if the guarantee came first, ensuring that Grace made 'all payments' 'promptly' goes beyond guaranteeing 'repayment of the Loan', so Rocky likely provided consideration.

b. Issue. Whether Rocky's promise to ensure Grace's payments was consideration, or only a promise to do what he already owed under the guarantee.

c. Arguments. AMPL ('may invoke'): Rocky had already guaranteed the Loan, so his promise gave it nothing new (Sundell). Earlier versions built this on Rocky's word 'also'; the final text drops that inference. Rocky: no pre-existing contract existed (on 27 February he only 'asked'; the clause was included after Pierre agreed), and in any event ensuring 'all payments' 'promptly' exceeds guaranteeing 'repayment of the Loan'.

d. Rule and authority. fn 23: TA Sundell & Sons v Emm Yannoulatos (1955) 56 SR (NSW) 323, 327 (Full Court, as quoted in the casebook note). CB2B p 114: "the only consideration which was suggested in argument as being given in exchange for the alleged promise was that the [defendant] would do what was necessary to ensure that the goods were delivered. But we are satisfied that the [defendant] was bound to do so under the original contract." fn 24: Wigan v Edwards (1973) 47 ALJR 586, 594, Mason J (majority). CB2B p 131: "The general rule is that a promise to perform an existing duty is no consideration, at least when the promise is made by a party to a pre-existing contract, when it is made to the promisee under that contract, and it is to do no more than the promisor is bound to do under the contract."

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 23: W2 C2A Consideration 1/Casebook (casebook/reading p 113, pdf p 15); source words: "… In TA Sundell c& Sons Pty Ltd v Emm Yannoulatos (Overseas) Pty Ltd (1955) 56 SR (NSW) 323 (see [10.300]), the defendants agreed to supply certain galvanised iron to the plaintiffs at £109 15s per ton. Subsequently the defendants refused to deliver the goods unless the price was increased by £27 per ton, citing a great increase in the price of zinc as the reason. Under protest, the plaintiffs made the additional funds available and in due course received the iron. The plaintiffs then successfully sued to recover t…” / fn 24: W2 C2B Consideration 2/Casebook (casebook/reading p 131, pdf p 14); source words: “… April.] MASON J: [594] The first question which arises is whether there was valuable consideration for the appellant’s promise of 22 April 1969. The general rule is that a promise to perform an existing duty is no consideration, at least when the promise is made by a party to a pre-existing contract, when it is made to the promisee under that contract, and it is to do no more than the promisor is bound to do under the contract. The rule expresses the concept that the new promise, indistinguishable from [4.350] 131 …”

e. Why this source. Sundell is AMPL’s best case and its facts mirror Rocky’s (‘ensure’); Wigan gives the three limbs, two of which Rocky uses (no pre-existing contract; more than he was bound to do). Alternatives rejected: Williams v Roffey and Musumeci (practical benefit; unnecessary where the rule does not apply at all); Pao On 632 for a duty owed to a third party (considered and excluded, section 3, item 2).

f. Appropriateness. Wigan’s ‘at least when’ marks where the rule certainly applies; the answer’s ‘the rule presupposes a duty, as under ’a pre-existing contract’ with the promisee’ fairly states that without claiming the rule is confined to it. Sundell is cited from the casebook’s note, which quotes the court; no judge is named because the note quotes the court jointly.

g. Calculus. Order of events is not stated, but F28 (‘Pierre agreed and the clause was included’) reads as clause after bargain; and even if the guarantee came first, the scope comparison (timeliness of every payment versus ultimate repayment of principal) gives Rocky the third Wigan limb. Flip: proof that the guarantee clause was agreed and drafted before Rocky’s statement, and that it covered interest and timeliness. Strength: moderate to strong. ‘likely provided consideration’ is right.

P10. Intention to create legal relations (family tie)

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F19: On 27 February 2024, Rocky asked A-Maize Pty Ltd, (‘AMPL’) a company owned and controlled by Rocky’s cousin, Pierre, to advance $1,150,000 to Grace.	Intention is in issue because Pierre is Rocky’s cousin, but presumptions about family arrangements at most identify who bears the onus,[fn 25] here Rocky.
F21: On 8 April 2024, Rocky, Grace, and Pierre attended a meeting at AMPL’s office. F27: Rocky said, ‘I will do that if you also promise to pay $10,000 to me directly once Grace repays the Loan.’	A promise to pay a fixed sum, made at AMPL’s office as its loan was finalised, is ‘appropriately promissory in character’ and commercial,[fn 26] so intention is likely present whoever promised.

b. Issue. Whether the cousin relationship displaces intention.

c. Arguments. AMPL or Pierre: a family arrangement between cousins is presumed not binding. Rocky: presumptions only allocate the onus; the setting was commercial (a company’s office, a loan document, a fixed sum).

d. Rule and authority. fn 25: Ermogenous [26] (joint majority). CB3A p 137: “At best, the use of that language does no more than invite attention to identifying the party who bears the onus of proof.” fn 26: Banque Brussels Lambert v Australian National Industries (1989) 21 NSWLR 502, 523, Rogers CJ (Comm D; first instance). CB3A p 144: “If the statements are appropriately promissory in character, courts should enforce them when they are uttered in the course of business and there is no clear indication that they are not intended to be legally enforceable.”

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 25: W3 C3A Intention/Casebook (casebook/reading p 137, pdf p 3); source words: “… concerning the engage- ment of a minister of religion. For our part, we doubt the utility of using the language of presumptions in this context. At best, the use of that language does no more than invite attention to identifying the party who bears the onus of proof. In this case, where issue was joined about the existence of a legally binding contract between the parties, there could be no doubt that it was for the appellant to demonstrate that there was such a contract. Reference to presum…” / fn 26: W3 C3A Intention/Casebook (casebook/reading p 144, pdf p 10); source words: “…ttempt to give proper effect to commercial transactions. It is for this reason that uncertainty, a concept so much loved by lawyers, has fallen into disfavour as a tool for striking down commercial bargains. If the statements are appropriately promissory in character, courts should enforce them when they are uttered in the course of business and there is no clear indication that they are not intended to be legally enforceable. If I may say, the judgments of Hirst J, at first instance in Klein…”

e. Why this source. Ermogenous is the High Court’s statement that the presumptions are at most an onus device; Banque Brussels is the course’s commercial-promise case and states the test the answer applies. Alternatives rejected: Balfour v Balfour style domestic cases (the relationship here is not domestic and the answer sidesteps the presumption anyway); Todd v Nicol (CB3A, family, closer facts but pointing to the same onus analysis).

f. Appropriateness. Ermogenous is majority and used for what it said. Banque Brussels is a first instance decision about a letter of comfort; using its general test is fair, and the factual comparison was cut (section 3, item 3). Onus correctly placed on Rocky, as the party alleging the contract.

g. Calculus. Commercial setting and fixed sum outweigh kinship; Pierre spoke as AMPL’s controller. Flip: facts showing a private family favour (none). Strength: strong to moderate. ‘likely present whoever promised’ is right.

P11. Certainty and content of Rocky’s undertaking

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F24: Interest was to be paid by Grace monthly, and the Loan was repayable at the expiry of 12 months. F26: Pierre expressed during the meeting that he expected Rocky to ensure that Grace made all payments under the Loan Agreement promptly.	Rocky's undertaking to 'ensure' payment is not 'so obscure' as to be uncertain, because the Loan Agreement fixes the payments.[fn 27]
F26: Pierre expressed during the meeting that he expected Rocky to ensure that Grace made all payments under the Loan Agreement promptly. F27: Rocky said, 'I will do that if you also promise to pay $10,000 to me directly once Grace repays the Loan.'	Read objectively, his unqualified 'I will do that', answering Pierre's expectation that he 'ensure' payment, likely promised that Grace would pay, not merely that Rocky would try.[fn 28]

b. Issue. Whether 'ensure' is too vague, and whether Rocky promised a result (that Grace would pay) or effort.

c. Arguments. Rocky: 'ensure' is uncertain, or at most a promise to try, which his check-ins performed. AMPL: the payments are fixed by the Loan Agreement, and an unqualified 'I will do that' answering 'ensure' promises the outcome.

d. Rule and authority. fn 27: Council of the Upper Hunter County District v Australian Chilling and Freezing (1968) 118 CLR 429, 437, Barwick CJ, quoting Scammell v Ouston 268 (Lord Wright). CB3B p 161: "So long as the language employed by the parties, to use Lord Wright's words in G Scammell & Nephew Ltd v Ouston [1941] AC 251, is not "so obscure and so incapable of any definite or precise meaning that the court is unable to attribute to the parties any particular contractual intention", the contract cannot be held to be void or uncertain or meaningless." fn 28: Ermogenous [25]. CB3A p 137: "It describes what it is that would objectively be conveyed by what was said or done, having regard to the circumstances in which those statements and actions happened".

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 27: W3 C3B Certainty/Casebook (casebook/reading p 161, pdf p 3); source words: "…is connection in Hillas & Co Ltd v Arcos Ltd (1932) 147 LT 503, 512, ought to be kept in mind. So long as the language employed by the parties, to use Lord Wright's words in G Scammell & Nephew Ltd v Ouston [1941] AC 251, is not "so obscure and so incapable of any definite or precise meaning that the court is unable to attribute to the parties any particular contractual intention", the contract cannot be held to be void or uncertain or meaningless. In the search for…" / fn 28: W3 C3A Intention/Casebook (casebook/reading p 137, pdf p 3); source words: "… agreement to the adjudication of the courts" (South Australia v Commonwealth (1962) 108 CLR 130 at 154 per Windeyer J). [25] Because the inquiry about this last aspect may take account of the subject-matter of the agreement, the status of the parties to it, their relationship to one another, and other surrounding circumstances (South Australia v Commonwealth (1962) 108 CLR 130 at 154; Placer Development Ltd v Commonwealth (1969) 121 CLR 353 at 367 per Windeyer J), not only is there…"

e. Why this source. Upper Hunter is the course's statement of the 'so obscure' threshold and its commercial-construction gloss is reused at P15; Ermogenous [25] gives the objective lens for what 'I will do that' conveyed. Alternatives rejected: Scammell directly (not extracted; only quoted); Hillas v Arcos (not needed where the reference point is the written Loan Agreement).

f. Appropriateness. Barwick CJ was in the majority; the Scammell words are attributed by ', quoting'. Ermogenous [25] is about intention, used here for objective meaning of words, which is within what it says ('what was said or done').

g. Calculus. The words answer Pierre's 'ensure' without qualification, so the objective meaning is a promise of the outcome; the check-ins (F30, no longer mentioned in the final text) would show only effort and cannot redefine the promise. Flip: any words of limitation at the meeting ('I will do what I can'). Strength: moderate. Cutting ', as his check-ins did' loses nothing: the comparison only mattered on the effort reading the answer rejects. 'likely promised that Grace would pay' is right.

P12. Does the written guarantee clause bind Rocky?

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F25: The Loan Agreement also included a clause that Rocky personally guaranteed repayment of the Loan.	A separate issue is whether the guarantee clause binds Rocky.
F38: Unfortunately, AMPL required the $1,150,000 as soon as possible and so on 9 March 2025, when Grace had not yet repaid the Loan, AMPL called for payment of the Loan under the personal guarantee provided by Rocky. F22: At the meeting, AMPL and Grace entered into a written loan agreement (the 'Loan Agreement').	AMPL's call 'under the personal guarantee provided by Rocky' assumes, but does not prove, his assent, and because privity prevents AMPL and Grace's contract imposing obligations on Rocky,[fn 29] AMPL must show that assent.
F27: Rocky said, 'I will do that if you also promise to pay $10,000 to me directly once Grace repays the Loan.' F28: Pierre agreed and the clause was included in the Loan Agreement before it was signed by Grace and AMPL.	Silence while a clause is included is generally not 'an external manifestation' of assent,[fn 30] but Rocky's 'I will do that', given for the $10,000 promise, likely binds him at least to his oral undertaking.[fn 31]
F21: On 8 April 2024, Rocky, Grace, and Pierre attended a meeting at AMPL's office. F28: Pierre agreed and the clause was included in the Loan Agreement before it was signed by Grace and AMPL.	Having 'attended' with a reasonable opportunity to object, he arguably knew the clause's terms and assented to them by retaining the $10,000 promise,[fn 32] although Rocky could answer that the $10,000 priced his own words, not the clause.

b. Issue (final text: P12.2 'assumes, but does not prove, his assent'; P12.3 'Silence while a clause is included'; P12.4 'by retaining the $10,000 promise' and 'Rocky could answer'; the analysis is unchanged). Whether Rocky is bound by the clause 'Rocky personally guaranteed repayment of the Loan' in a document signed only by AMPL and Grace.

c. Arguments. AMPL: its call shows a guarantee was given (the final text says it 'assumes, but does not prove, his assent'); Rocky was present, the clause was included in front of him, and he retained the $10,000 promise made in the same exchange. Rocky: he signed nothing; privity prevents a contract between AMPL and Grace imposing liability on him; his ‘I will do that’ priced his own words, not their clause.

d. Rule and authority. fn 29: Trident General Insurance v McNiece Bros (1988) 165 CLR 107, Deane J (majority in result; no pin available). TRI and OFF: “the general rule that only the parties to a contract are bound by, and entitled to enforce, its terms.” fn 30: Empirnall 534. CB1B p 71: “Under the common law theory of contract, the silent acceptance of an offer is generally insufficient to create any contract” fn 31: Australian Woollen Mills v Commonwealth (1954) 92 CLR 424, 456 to 457, the Court (unanimous). CB2A p 101: “there must subsist, so to speak, [457] the relation of a quid pro quo.” fn 32: Empirnall 535 to 536. CB1B p 72: “where an offeree with a reasonable opportunity to reject the offer of goods or services takes the benefit of them under circumstances which indicate that they were to be paid for in accordance with the offer, it is open to the tribunal of fact to hold that the offer was accepted according to its terms” and “The case is not so much one of acceptance by silence as one of taking the benefit of an offer with knowledge of its terms”.

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 29: W4 C4A Privity/Trident (course reading) (casebook/reading p n/a, pdf p 3); source words: “…DEANE J: At the time of the establishment of this Court, the common law of England and of this country was long settled in its insistence upon the principle of privity of contract, that is to say, the general rule that only the parties to a contract are bound by, and entitled to enforce, its terms. Thus, in the first edition of”Principles of the English Law of Contract” published in 1879, Sir William Anson commenced a sometime tentative identification of the limits of contractual obliga…” / fn 30: W1 C1B Acceptance/Casebook (casebook/reading p 71, pdf p 6); source words: “…laimed was owing under an oral contract.] McHUGH JA: [534] Under the common law theory of contract, the silent acceptance of an offer is generally insufficient to create any contract … The objective theory of contract requires an external manifestation of assent to an offer. Convenience, and especially commercial convenience, has given rise to the rule that the acceptance of the offer should be communicated to the offeror. After a reasonable period has elapsed, silence is seen as a rejec…” / fn 31: W2 C2A Consideration 1/Casebook (casebook/reading p 101, pdf p 3); source words: “…ment or announce- ment, which is put forward as an offer capable of acceptance by the doing of an act, and the act which is put forward as the executed consideration for the alleged promise, there must subsist, so to speak, [457] the relation of a quid pro quo. One simple example will suffice to illustrate this. A, in Sydney, says to B in Melbourne: “I will pay you £1 000 on your arrival in Sydney.” The next day B goes to Sydney. If these facts alone are proved, it is perfectly clear t…” / fn 32: W1 C1B Acceptance/Casebook (casebook/reading p 72, pdf p 7); source words: “… Part II: Formation Empirnall Holdings v Machon Paull Partners cont. This formulation states acceptance in terms of a rule of law. However, the question is one of fact. A more accurate statement is that where an offeree with a reasonable opportunity to reject the offer of goods or services takes the benefit of them under circumstances which indicate that they were to be paid for in accordance with the offer, it is open to the tribunal of fact to…”

e. Why this source. Trident (Deane J) is the only course text stating the ‘bound by’ limb of privity in terms, which is the limb in issue (a burden, not a benefit). Empirnall gives both the silence rule and its exception (taking a benefit with knowledge of terms), which is exactly AMPL’s best argument. Alternatives rejected: Coulls (benefit side only); the ticket cases (Empirnall itself draws the analogy, so citing them separately adds nothing).

f. Appropriateness. Deane J was in the majority on the result (appeal dismissed; Brennan and Dawson JJ dissenting); his general statement is uncontroversial. No pin: TRI and OFF carry no page markers in his reasons (verify lint). Empirnall 535 to 536 concerns accepting services with knowledge of a price; applying it to accepting a promise of $10,000 with knowledge of a guarantee clause is an analogy. ‘with a reasonable opportunity to object’ is stated as fact, but the facts show only that Rocky ‘attended’ and the clause was included before signing; the ‘arguably’ later in the sentence carries the hedge for the inference.

g. Calculus. Two tiers: (1) his oral undertaking binds him (P7 to P11): moderate, ‘likely’; (2) assent to the written clause depends on whether he knew its words when he took the $10,000 promise; the facts do not say he saw it: weak to moderate, and ‘arguably’ is the right word. The counter-argument is stated at its strongest. Flip: evidence that the draft was read out or shown to him (raises tier 2), or that he objected (defeats it).

P13. Consideration for the guarantee

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F27: Rocky said, ‘I will do that if you also promise to pay $10,000 to me directly once Grace repays the Loan.’ F28: Pierre agreed and the clause was included in the Loan Agreement before it was signed by Grace and AMPL.	Consideration for the guarantee must move from AMPL,[fn 33] and if AMPL promised the $10,000, that promise supplies it.
F19: On 27 February 2024, Rocky asked A-Maize Pty Ltd, (‘AMPL’) a company owned and controlled by Rocky’s cousin, Pierre, to advance $1,150,000 to Grace. F20: Pierre agreed to provide the money to Grace and the $1,150,000 was advanced by AMPL on the same day. F28: Pierre agreed and the clause was included in the Loan Agreement before it was signed by Grace and AMPL.	If Pierre promised personally, AMPL’s earlier advance is past consideration,[fn 34] which, though Rocky ‘asked’ for it, counts only if both understood it ‘was to be remunerated’,[fn 35] and that is doubtful; AMPL’s stronger answer is that it signed the Loan Agreement only after the clause was included, an act likely ‘really done in consideration of’ the guarantee,[fn 36] so the guarantee is likely supported if Rocky assented.

b. Issue. Whether AMPL gave consideration for Rocky’s guarantee.

c. Arguments. Rocky: the $1,150,000 was advanced on 27 February, before any guarantee, so it is past consideration. AMPL: if it promised the $10,000, that promise is consideration; if not, it signed the Loan Agreement only after the clause went in, an act done for the guarantee.

d. Rule and authority. fn 33: Coulls 495, Windeyer J (dissenting) (as P5). fn 34: Roscorla v Thomas (1842) 3 QB 234, 237; 114 ER 496, Lord Denman CJ (judgment of the Court). CB2B p 113: “the present, which appears to us to fall within the general rule, that a consideration past and executed will support no other promise than such as would be implied by law.” fn 35: Pao On v Lau Yiu Long [1980] AC 614, 629 to 630, Lord Scarman for the Board (Privy Council). Pao On extract (no page markers): “The act must have been done at the promisors’ request: the parties must have understood that the act was to be remunerated either by a payment or the conferment of some other benefit”. fn 36: AWM 456. CB2A p 101: “it should be made to appear that the statement or announcement which is relied on as a promise was really offered as consideration for the doing of the act, and that the act was really done in consideration of a potential promise inherent in the statement or announcement.”

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 33: W4 C4A Privity/Casebook (casebook/reading p 333, pdf p 7); source words: “…ons in the same court. On whatever foundation the American doctrine be put, it cannot, I think, be accepted as a part of the common law as we have inherited it. For us the rule prevails that a plaintiff who sues on a promise must show a consideration for it provided by him … [499] Whether we like them or not, the rules relating to consideration seem to me a stubborn part of our law. They cannot be displaced by courts by head-on collision. Fortior et potentior est dispositio legis quam hominis. Wh…” / fn 34: W2 C2A Consideration 1/Casebook (casebook/reading p 113, pdf p 15); source words: “…ome rule of law, would of themselves have been sufficient to raise an implied promise. All these cases are distinguishable from, and indeed inapplicable to, the present, which appears to us to fall within the general rule, that a consideration past and executed will support no other promise than such as would be implied by law. [238] The rule for arresting the judgment upon the first count must therefore be made absolute. Rule absolute. The existing legal duty rule The general rule [4.1…” / fn 35: W2 C2A Consideration 1/Pao On extract (casebook/reading p n/a, pdf p 1); source words: “…rd Scarman: An act done before the giving of a promise to make a payment or to confer some other benefit can sometimes be consideration for the promise. The act must have been done at the promisors’ request: the parties must have understood that the act was to be remunerated either by a payment or the conferment of some other benefit: and payment, or the conferment of a benefit, must have been legally enforceable had it been promised in advance. All three features are present in this case. The promis…” / fn 36: W2 C2A Consideration 1/Casebook (casebook/reading p 101, pdf p 3); source words: “…, in order that a contract may be established, that it should be made to appear that the statement or announcement which is relied on as a promise was really offered as consideration for the doing of the act, and that the act was really done in consideration of a potential promise inherent in the statement or announcement. Between the statement or announcement, which is put forward as an offer capable of acceptance by the doing of an act, and the act which is put forward as the execut…”

e. Why this source. Coulls for the rule that consideration must move from the promisee; Roscorla is the course’s past consideration case; Pao On supplies the exception the casebook flags at CB2A p 112 ([4.170]: “rendered on the basis that they were to be paid for (see Pao On v Lau Yiu Long [1980] AC 614 at [4.310])]”), so the answer meets AMPL’s best reply on the past advance; AWM states the causal link AMPL must show between its signing and the guarantee. Alternative rejected: Pao On 632 (third-party duty; section 3, item 2), which goes to Rocky’s consideration, not AMPL’s.

f. Appropriateness. Windeyer J’s statement is in dissent but the rule is common ground (as P5). Roscorla is used for what it decided. FIXED in the final text: the f9 version said the advance ‘cannot support it’, ignoring the Pao On exception; P13.2 now says the advance ‘counts only if both understood it ’was to be remunerated’’, concedes the request limb (‘though Rocky ’asked’ for it’), and finds the remuneration limb doubtful (‘and that is doubtful’). That is Lord Scarman’s test applied as stated by the Board, for what the case decided; the third limb (enforceable if promised in advance) is not reached because the second fails. The only limit is that the pin 629 to 630 rests on the brief, as the course extract carries no page markers. AWM’s passage concerns an act done for a promise; AMPL’s signing for Rocky’s guarantee fits it directly.

g. Calculus. On the Pierre branch the past advance fails Pao On’s second limb: on 27 February Rocky only ‘asked’ and nothing shows a guarantee or other return was then contemplated (moderate to strong). On the AMPL branch, the $10,000 promise is plainly consideration (strong). On the Pierre branch, AMPL’s signing after the clause’s inclusion is a present act likely done in return for the guarantee (moderate). Flip: proof that AMPL had already committed to sign regardless. Overall ‘likely supported if Rocky assented’ is right, and correctly conditional on P12.

P14. When did the 12 months begin?

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F24: Interest was to be paid by Grace monthly, and the Loan was repayable at the expiry of 12 months. F38: Unfortunately, AMPL required the $1,150,000 as soon as possible and so on 9 March 2025, when Grace had not yet repaid the Loan, AMPL called for payment of the Loan under the personal guarantee provided by Rocky.	Whether AMPL’s call was premature depends on when the 12 months began.
F20: Pierre agreed to provide the money to Grace and the $1,150,000 was advanced by AMPL on the same day. F24: Interest was to be paid by Grace monthly, and the Loan was repayable at the expiry of 12 months. F31: On 13 February 2025, Rocky sent an email to Grace asking, ‘when and how [Grace] intend[ed] to repay the principal of the Loan – the $1.15m?’.	Post-contractual conduct cannot interpret the term,[fn 37] but because the term apparently specifies no start and is arguably ambiguous, mutually known facts showing ‘the genesis of the transaction’ are admissible.[fn 38]
F20: Pierre agreed to provide the money to Grace and the $1,150,000 was advanced by AMPL on the same day. F23: The loan was recorded as $1,150,000 (‘Loan’) with an interest rate of 4% per annum. F36: AMPL argued that the Loan was advanced on 27 February, and thus the 12 months had begun then.	AMPL may argue the term ran from its 27 February advance, since the agreement ‘recorded’ a loan already made.
F21: On 8 April 2024, Rocky, Grace, and Pierre attended a meeting at AMPL’s office. F23: The loan was recorded as $1,150,000 (‘Loan’) with an interest rate of 4% per annum.	However, ‘recorded’ applies equally to the 4% rate, which nothing shows was agreed before 8 April, and the genesis shows only when the money moved, not that a term first agreed on 8 April began earlier.
F35: On that same date, AMPL contacted Grace directly, however, Grace refused to pay, saying, ‘I have until 8 April 2025 to repay and you won’t see a cent before then’. F38: Unfortunately, AMPL required the $1,150,000 as soon as possible and so on 9 March 2025, when Grace had not yet repaid the Loan, AMPL called for payment of the Loan under the personal guarantee provided by Rocky.	The term therefore arguably ran from 8 April 2024, making the 9 March 2025 call premature unless the Loan Agreement dates it from the advance.

b. Issue. Whether ‘repayable at the expiry of 12 months’ ran from the 27 February 2024 advance (due 27 February 2025, so AMPL’s call was timely) or from the 8 April 2024 agreement (due 8 April 2025, so the call was premature).

c. Arguments. AMPL: the agreement ‘recorded’ a loan already made; a loan’s term naturally runs from the money moving; the advance is part of the genesis. Grace and Rocky (on timing): the term was first agreed on 8 April; ‘recorded’ also governs the 4% rate, which nothing shows existed before 8 April, so ‘recorded’ cannot date the term back.

d. Rule and authority. fn 37: Brambles 164, Heydon JA (Ipp AJA agreeing on construction). CB1B p 73: “post-contractual conduct is not admissible on the question of what a contract means as distinct from the question of whether it was formed.” fn 38: Brambles 191, Ipp AJA (Mason P agreeing; majority). CB1B p 82: “Where ambiguities exist, mutually known facts establishing the commercial purpose of the contract, the genesis of the transaction, the background and the context in which the parties are operating will be admissible”.

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 37: W1 C1B Acceptance/Casebook (casebook/reading p 73, pdf p 8); source words: “… genesis of the contract, its objective aim, or the meaning of any descriptive term: Codelfa Construction Pty Ltd v State Rail Authority of New South Wales (1982) 149 CLR 337 at 347–52. [164] The second relevant principle is that post-contractual conduct is admissible on the question of whether a contract was formed: Howard Smith & Co Ltd v Varawa (1907) 5 CLR 68 at 77; Barrier Wharfs Ltd v W Scott Fell & Co Ltd (1908) 5 CLR 647 at 668, 669 and 672; B Seppelt & Sons Ltd v Commissioner for Main Roads (1975) 1 BPR 9,147at 9,149 and 9,154–6; Fi…” / fn 38: W1 C1B Acceptance/Casebook (casebook/reading p 82, pdf p 15); source words: “… of construing the contract: Codelfa Construction Pty Ltd v State Rail Authority of New South Wales (1982) 149 CLR 337 at 352. Where ambiguities exist, mutually known facts establishing the commercial purpose of the contract, the genesis of the transaction, the background and the context in which the parties are operating will be admissible: Reardon Smith Line Ltd v Hansen-Tangen (1976) 1 WLR 989 (at 995 to 996 per Lord Wilberforce). On this basis, the shared beliefs of the parties…”

e. Why this source. Brambles is the course’s construction authority and gives both the exclusion (post-contractual conduct, which removes the 13 February email and the 7 March arguments) and the admission (genesis), so the answer can test AMPL’s best evidence. Alternatives rejected: Codelfa (cited inside Brambles, not extracted); Upper Hunter (construction of uncertain words, not of an ambiguous start date).

f. Appropriateness. Ipp AJA’s words are majority reasons; Heydon JA’s 164 principle had Ipp AJA’s agreement. Brambles concerned whether a contract formed and its terms; using its construction principles for a start date is within what it states. Limit: the course supplies the method, not the answer; the settled pre-drafting view (ISSUES_SETTLED S-1) leaned weakly the other way, to 27 February.

g. Calculus. The genesis proves when money moved; it does not prove that a term agreed on 8 April was meant to begin earlier, and ‘recorded’ cuts both ways because it governs the 4% rate too. Against that, a loan’s term is commonly counted from drawdown, and interest presumably ran from the advance. This is a genuine toss-up resolved by the Loan Agreement’s own words, which the facts do not give. Strength: weak. ‘arguably ran from 8 April 2024’ and ‘unless the Loan Agreement dates it from the advance’ are exactly right; P16 then states liability on both readings, so the advice does not depend on the lean.

P15. The condition on the $10,000

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F27: Rocky said, ‘I will do that if you also promise to pay $10,000 to me directly once Grace repays the Loan.’ F38: Unfortunately, AMPL required the $1,150,000 as soon as possible and so on 9 March 2025, when Grace had not yet repaid the Loan, AMPL called for payment of the Loan under the personal guarantee provided by Rocky.	The $10,000 is payable only ‘once Grace repays the Loan’, a condition precedent to the obligation rather than to the contract, which bound immediately,[fn 39] so nothing was payable on 9 March 2025, when Grace ‘had not yet repaid’.
F27: Rocky said, ‘I will do that if you also promise to pay $10,000 to me directly once Grace repays the Loan.’	Rocky could argue that, read commercially, his own repayment satisfies the condition;[fn 40] however, the words refer to Grace, and the $10,000 priced his promise that Grace would pay, so his payment likely leaves the condition unfulfilled.

b. Issue. Whether the $10,000 is payable now, and whether Rocky’s own payment under the guarantee satisfies ‘once Grace repays the Loan’.

c. Arguments. Rocky: read commercially, the purpose (the Loan repaid) is achieved whoever pays, so his payment triggers the $10,000. AMPL: the words name Grace; the $10,000 was the price of Rocky ensuring Grace pays, not of Rocky paying instead.

d. Rule and authority. fn 39: Meehan 582, Gibbs CJ. CB3B p 184: “It is clear that the condition in Special Condition 1(b) is not a condition precedent to contract. Certain obligations under the contract attached immediately the contract was signed although the condition had not been fulfilled.” fn 40: Upper Hunter 437, Barwick CJ. CB3B p 161: “In the search for that intention, no narrow or pedantic approach is warranted, particularly in the case of commercial arrangements.”

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 39: W3 C3B Certainty/Casebook (casebook/reading p 184, pdf p 20); source words: “…as to whether he shall carry them out. Once the condition is fulfilled, within the time allowed by the contract for its fulfilment, the contract becomes completely binding. It is clear that the condition in Special Condition 1(b) is not a condition precedent to contract. Certain obligations under the contract attached immediately the contract was signed although the condition had not been fulfilled. For example, the provisions with regard to the deposit, and with regard to the giving and answeri…” / fn 40: W3 C3B Certainty/Casebook (casebook/reading p 161, pdf p 3); source words: “… any definite or precise meaning that the court is unable to attribute to the parties any particular contractual intention”, the contract cannot be held to be void or uncertain or meaningless. In the search for that intention, no narrow or pedantic approach is warranted, particularly in the case of commercial arrangements. Thus will uncertainty of meaning, as distinct from absence of meaning or of intention, be resolved. I do not think there is any uncertainty or for that m…”

e. Why this source. Meehan supplies the distinction between a condition precedent to the contract and to an obligation, which keeps the contract alive while the payment waits; Upper Hunter is Rocky’s best commercial-construction argument, reused from P11. Alternatives rejected: Beaton and Secured Income on the duty to co-operate (considered and excluded, section 3, item 4).

f. Appropriateness. Gibbs CJ, majority; Barwick CJ, majority. Meehan’s condition was a finance clause in a land sale; the general distinction transfers cleanly.

g. Calculus. The text names Grace, and the bargain priced Rocky’s promise that Grace would pay; Rocky paying instead is the failure of what he promised, so it cannot earn the reward for it. Flip: words in the Loan Agreement making the $10,000 payable on the Loan being ‘repaid’ by anyone. Strength: moderate to strong. ‘likely leaves the condition unfulfilled’ is right.

P16. Bottom line in the submission

a.

Mid-term facts (verbatim)	Submission (verbatim)
F25: The Loan Agreement also included a clause that Rocky personally guaranteed repayment of the Loan. F36: AMPL argued that the Loan was advanced on 27 February, and thus the 12 months had begun then. F35: On that same date, AMPL contacted Grace directly, however, Grace refused to pay, saying, ‘I have until 8 April 2025 to repay and you won’t see a cent before then’.	Accordingly, if Rocky assented to the clause, by which he ‘personally guaranteed repayment of the Loan’, he is liable for $1,150,000 once the Loan is due and unpaid: immediately if the term ran from 27 February, or from 8 April 2025 if Grace has still not repaid.
F24: Interest was to be paid by Grace monthly, and the Loan was repayable at the expiry of 12 months. F26: Pierre expressed during the meeting that he expected Rocky to ensure that Grace made all payments under the Loan Agreement promptly. F29: Between 8 April 2024 and 8 February 2025, Grace made appropriate monthly repayments of the interest on the Loan to AMPL.	If bound only by his oral undertaking, he likely breaches it, and faces damages, if Grace fails to pay any amount when due.
F27: Rocky said, ‘I will do that if you also promise to pay $10,000 to me directly once Grace repays the Loan.’ F37: Grace disagreed, saying, ‘if you don’t leave off, I might not pay at all!’	His $10,000 claim, against AMPL or alternatively Pierre, likely stands but is conditional:[fn 41] it falls due only when Grace repays, so never if Grace, who said he ‘might not pay at all’, never repays, and likely never if Rocky pays it himself.

b. Issue. Rocky’s exposure and the value of his own claim.

c. Arguments. As in P12 to P15.

d. Rule and authority. fn 41: Meehan 582, Gibbs CJ (as P15).

Pinpoint (PINPOINT_MAP.md): fn 41: W3 C3B Certainty/Casebook (casebook/reading p 184, pdf p 20); source words: “…as to whether he shall carry them out. Once the condition is fulfilled, within the time allowed by the contract for its fulfilment, the contract becomes completely binding. It is clear that the condition in Special Condition 1(b) is not a condition precedent to contract. Certain obligations under the contract attached immediately the contract was signed although the condition had not been fulfilled. For example, the provisions with regard to the deposit, and with regard to the giving and answeri…”

e. Why this source. Reuses the condition authority for the conclusion; no new law.

f. Appropriateness. Correct; the conclusion states liability on both readings of the 12 months and on both bases (clause or oral undertaking). Dates check: 27 February 2024 plus 12 months is 27 February 2025 (passed by 9 March, so ‘immediately’); 8 April 2024 plus 12 months is 8 April 2025.

g. Calculus. Liability under the clause: moderate overall, capped by the assent question in P12. Liability on the oral undertaking for breach if Grace fails to pay when due: moderate. $10,000: likely binding but likely never payable if Rocky pays. Hedges right.

3. CONSIDERED AND EXCLUDED

No.	Point	Why excluded	Effect on the advice
1	AMPL’s 27 February advance was not Rocky’s performance of the email (agency)	NOW INCLUDED in the final text at P5.3 (‘Nor was AMPL his agent’, fn 16). No longer excluded.	The fallback branch (email binding) still leaves Rocky exposed to Grace for failing to lend by 15 February, with any loss doubtful as Grace received more money 12 days later; the answer does not price that branch.
2	Pao On 632: a promise to perform a duty owed to a third party can be consideration (if Pierre contracted personally)	Words. If Pierre personally promised the $10,000, Rocky’s undertaking to Pierre may duplicate a duty owed to AMPL under the guarantee. OFF: “a promise	Nil on the result: P9’s Wigan point (no pre-existing contract with the promisee) already covers it in part; Pao On would add positive authority for the Pierre to perform, or the performance of, a pre-existing contractual obligation to a third party can be valid consideration" (official-only; the course states the principle at CB2B [4.300]).	branch.

3	Banque Brussels letter-of-comfort comparison	Words. The case is still cited for its test at P10.2; the factual comparison (ANI's 'policy' statement held promissory in a commercial letter) would show that even soft commercial assurances can bind.	Nil; it would strengthen intention, already strong to moderate.
4	Rocky's duty-to-co-operate argument on the $10,000 (Beaton 185, citing Secured Income 607)	Words, and it fails: the duty reaches only what is necessary on AMPL's part. CB2A p 109: "a contractual duty to do everything necessary on their part to enable the plaintiff to have the benefit of the contract". Grace's repayment is not AMPL's to procure. McHugh JA's reasons in Beaton were a minority on the result.	Nil; including it would only show the argument considered and rejected.
5	The March 2025 interest instalment as a possible breach	Words, and the facts are silent: F29 records interest only 'Between 8 April 2024 and 8 February 2025'. If an instalment fell due on 8 March 2025 and was unpaid, Grace was in default the day before AMPL's call.	Potentially material: it would make a breach of Rocky's oral undertaking ('all payments … promptly') likely already, and could support AMPL's call even on the 8 April reading if the clause covers interest (its words, 'repayment of the Loan', point to principal). P16.2 covers it only generally ('any amount when due').
6	Grace's 'significant financial difficulties' (F6) as support for reading 'satisfactory'	Words. A lender to a borrower in difficulty would reserve real control over the conditions, which supports Rocky's reading in P3.	Nil on result; would strengthen P3.
7	Gibbs J's 'subsidiary matters' reservation (Godecke 647)	Words. CB3B p 190: "Perhaps it may be different where agreement has been reached on all essential terms but the determination of subsidiary matters has been left to one of the parties". It cuts for Grace.	Nil on the result, because the terms left were essential (the loan's own terms). The final text drops 'at all', so P3.5 no longer overstates Gibbs J; the reservation is simply not mentioned.

Also cut in the final text: Rocky's 'also' (F27) as the basis of AMPL's existing duty argument (P9.1 now states the argument without it; no effect on the advice); and Rocky's email check-ins (F30), formerly used at the end of P11.2 (', as his check-ins did'); they show effort only, so they matter only on the effort reading the answer rejects, and the cut has no effect on the advice. Also not addressed, correctly: anticipatory breach or repudiation by Grace ('I might not pay at all') and termination, which fall outside weeks 1 to 4; a guarantor's right of indemnity or subrogation against Grace, which is equitable or restitutionary and not a contractual claim on these facts; any claim by Grace for the delays (F4 'unavoidable').

4. BOTTOM LINE

1. Rocky has no contractual claim against Grace (beyond the Development Agreement, which is not shown breached): the email was probably not binding because the loan was left 'subject to satisfactory conditions' that Rocky alone would settle (P3, P4), and his 5 March demand fails on privity because Grace's promises in the Loan Agreement were made to AMPL, not to him, and AMPL lent for itself, not as his agent (P5, P6).
2. For the same reason Grace probably cannot sue Rocky for failing to lend by 15 February (P1 to P4, P6).
3. Rocky probably made a binding oral contract with AMPL (or, if Pierre spoke for himself, with Pierre): he promised that Grace would make all payments promptly, in return for $10,000 (P7 to P11).
4. Rocky is probably liable to AMPL at least on that oral undertaking if Grace does not pay when due, and for $1,150,000 under the written clause only if he assented to it, which is arguable but not certain because he signed nothing (P12, P13, P16).
5. Whether AMPL's 9 March 2025 call was premature turns on whether the 12 months ran from 27 February 2024 (call timely) or 8 April 2024 (call premature until 8 April 2025); this is open and depends on the Loan Agreement's own words (P14, P16).
6. Rocky's $10,000 is owed only once Grace repays, so it is likely never payable if Grace defaults and Rocky pays instead (P15, P16).

Where the submission is not the best possible:

- FIXED: P1.1's wrong connective ('otherwise') now reads 'since, if they did, Grace could claim'.
- PARTLY FIXED: P3.5 now says 'binds' (not 'binds at all'), so it no longer overstates Gibbs J; the subsidiary-matters reservation (CB3B p 190) is still not mentioned, and the answer does not signal that the passage is obiter in a concurring judgment; Walsh J's majority view at 642 (official only) is broader in Grace's favour than the answer shows.
- P3 could have used Gibbs J's own point at 647 that a discretion left to the promisor attracts the Thorby principle; it fits Rocky (the lender) exactly and costs few words.
- P5.3 and P8 (fn 16, fn 22) rely on an official-only and later-reversed authority (Port Jackson 269) for the agency test, now in two places, when the casebook's own note at CB4A p 336 or Trident (Mason CJ and Wilson J) would carry it inside the course text.
- FIXED: P13.2's past-consideration error ('cannot support it') is corrected with Pao On 629 to 630 (fn 35): the request limb is conceded and the remuneration limb found unmet ('nothing suggests that’).

- P12.4 states ‘with a reasonable opportunity to object’ as fact; the facts show only attendance and the clause’s inclusion before signing.
- The March 2025 interest instalment (section 3, item 5) is the one excluded point that could change Rocky’s exposure on the oral undertaking, and it is covered only by the general words ‘any amount when due’.
- Brambles 176 and 177 (now fn 4, fn 19 and fn 21) are cited to Heydon JA, whose offer-and-acceptance discussion was not the majority’s route; harmless for general statements but a strict marker may note it.
- fn 29 (Trident) has no pinpoint; none is available in the course reading or official text, so this is an accepted limit rather than a fixable error.